Kim Wallach - whimsical delivery of songs about the joys and woes of contemporary life

Brian O'Donovan- host of WGBH's Celtic Sojourn program

Staff Concerts, Song/Tune Swaps, Campers' Concert, Workshops, Teaching Sessions, Flea Market, and much more...

Join us for a relaxing, fun-filled weekend of music!

There will be workshops led by the professional staff and campers throughout the weekend. Other events include concerts by staff members, a campers' concert (similar to an open mic – all campers are invited to sign up), teaching sessions, a flea market, and lots more. You don't have to be a performer to participate – just be ready to enjoy yourself! More details on back of flyer. For more info: (978) 264–9710 fgw@fssgb.org.

Staff Members for 2010

In a pure, clear voice tempered by whimsical humor, Kim Wallach sings and writes of the joys and woes of contemporary life. Her warm and engaging performances are highlighted by her subtle guitar accompaniment. Her songs guide listeners to other times and places, and a wry recognition of life's foibles. Kim's musical roots go back to her activist parents' house in New Jersey, and the folk revival of the '50s & '60s. Through her college studies with poets Richard Wilbur and Robert Pinsky, and with the Scottish traditional singer Jean Redpath, she gained respect for the fine crafting of words and melody, and the enduring resonance of the old ballads. In addition to her solo career, Kim Wallach performs and records as a member of the Short Sisters, with Kate Seeger and Fay Baird. The trio is known for intricate and powerful harmony singing. Kim has performed throughout the U.S., and her songs are sung coast-to-coast.

Brian O'Donovan was born and raised in Clonakilty in West Cork, Ireland. He knew he would leave eventually and after graduating university, headed for England and eventually Boston, where he had intended to stay for 3 weeks. That was 29 years ago! He has since committed himself to his first loves of music production and public broadcasting. For more than 13 years, O'Donovan has established a distinctive niche in Boston radio by playing traditional Celtic, largely Irish music for the faithful listeners of "Celtic Sojourn."

Comfortable, private accommodations

Prindle Pond offers heated, insulated cabins with modern indoor plumbing and plenty of private (2-person) rooms. As always, we'll set aside separate areas for women only or families with young children.
